

COVID-19

Impact on Indian Real Estate

CONSUMER SENTIMENT SURVEY

Foreword

We are presently living in unprecedented times and Covid-19 has – in more ways than one – altered the way we live, think, work, or even socialize with people around us. However, there lies an opportunity in every crisis and Covid-19 looks no different.

All industries including Indian real estate are now diligently working to innovate and strategize their business. Among the key noticeable trends already, Indian residential sector is all set to embark on a different growth trajectory with 'home ownership' gaining significant preference among the new-age millennials, probably because it renders high level of security.

Further, businesses with sustainable models and having a strong foothold on technology are indeed the future. Online home sales will begin to gain traction and leading developers with good track record will be the main beneficiaries of this change.

Amidst these perceivable changes, we tried to gauge the mood of the prospective homebuyers and analyse what they are thinking during this pandemic-infused lockdown.

Whether the recent stock market volatility and financial turmoil changed their investment outlook. Or, are the current all-time low home loan interest rates (7.15% to 7.8%) a major factor attracting them to buy a property or whether Covid-19 has further raised high levels of uncertainty.

Notably, majority participants consider real estate to be the best asset class for investment and 'now' to be an ideal time for property purchase. Homebuyers preference to mitigate risks is at an all-time high with more than 72% preferring to buy from leading developers offering homes at high prices but having least execution risk. Demand for affordable & mid segment properties (priced up to sub ₹90 lakh budget) is also at unprecedented high.

Besides these, we also intercepted several other interesting trends and I sincerely hope you enjoy reading these in the survey.

Survey Methodology

This is a special edition of the ANAROCK Consumer Sentiment Survey in the wake of COVID-19. The survey is an attempt to gauge homebuyers' preferences during the pandemic, which will invariably lead to emergence of significant trends in the Indian real estate industry.

The main aim of the survey is to provide all stakeholders – consumers, developers, investors, sellers and owners including local and expatriates – deeper insights into the Indian property market purely from a consumer perspective.

This survey was conducted by ANAROCK Research between 20th to 27th April (2020), the online survey saw nearly 1,910 participants responding to it via different digital sources including email campaign, web link and messages. The sample was carefully selected so that it would give a relatively fair representation of the overall population demographics in terms of geographical distribution, gender and age. Thereafter, the answers collected were analysed in-house and data was correlated to the present economic conditions. The views expressed in the report are completely unbiased.

This is a baseline survey and will be conducted again in 2020 in order to understand changes due to COVID-19 in consumer behaviour.

Which is the best asset class for investment amidst COVID-19?

Majority respondents picked Real Estate as the best investment option against other asset classes in the current situation.

55% of these are millennials in 25 to 35 age bracket, 68% of which intend to buy property for their end-use.

REAL ESTATE

48% respondents prefer residential real estate as the best investment option during Covid-19 largely due to lower risks attached.

STOCKS

25% respondents prefer stocks

High volatility in stock market over last couple of months has resulted in dwindling investor confidence.

GOLD

18% respondents prefer gold

Interestingly, the yellow metal has gained much interest in the current situation and was the 3rd most preferred choice.

FIXED DEPOSIT

9% respondents prefer FDs

FDs have somewhat lost their sheen due to depleting interest rates in recent times – being as low as 3.5%. Thus, it is the least preferred choice currently.

Is it an ideal time to enter real estate market?

Over 54% respondents consider 'Now' to be an ideal time to buy a property while 29% say 'Maybe'.

54% respondents consider 'now' to be an ideal time to buy a home as they have the opportunity to not just negotiate a good deal but also get home loans at all-time low interest rates (7.15% - 7.8%).

11% respondents do not consider it to be an ideal time to buy a property.

Fear over job loss and overall slump in economic activity has dwindled their confidence.

29% of the survey participants think that 'maybe' it is an ideal time to buy a home.

While they may not be overtly confident, but they certainly do not consider it to be a bad option. They are unsure because of the underlying uncertainty as to when Covid-19 will end, and the extent of economic damage that may finally occur.

Fear of job loss in future is the major factor deterring 47% prospective homebuyers who put their decision on hold. No doubt, to curtail this health crisis the economy has taken a severe hit, with businesses completely shut. Meanwhile, at least 19% respondents lack the funds needed for buying a property, followed by 15% who think that uncertainty in project completion timeline has resulted in change of mind.

In the wake of Covid-19, which developer-type would you prefer?

Developer having the capability to complete a project on time with least execution risk is the most preferred even if the property is relatively higher priced.

This quite sums up the mood of the buyers. More than paying extra bucks, buyers prefer to avoid project execution risks in the current situation. A whopping 62% prospective buyers prefer to buy a home from leading developers with least project execution risks even if the property is relatively higher priced.

Covid-19 has changed buyer preferences with more people now preferring risk-free investments.

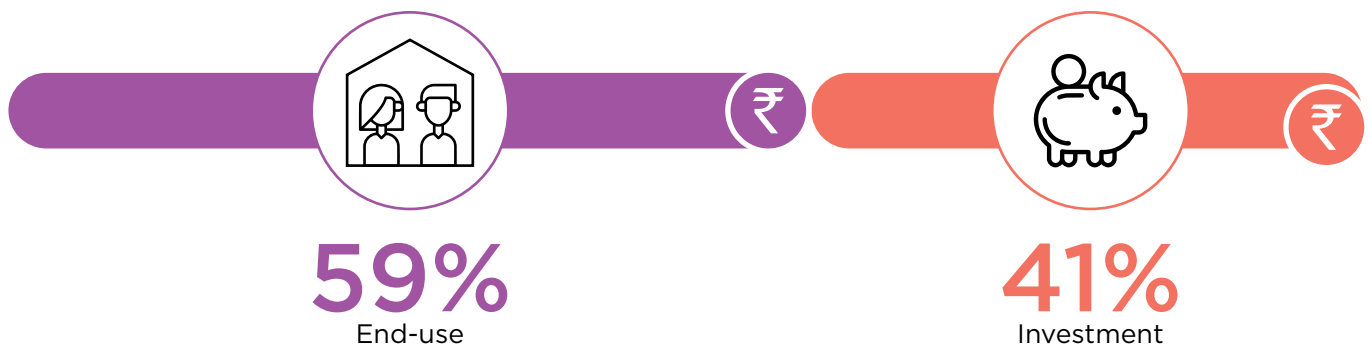

In contrast, merely 6% would consider buying from developers offering lower prices but having high risk of execution.

Interestingly, government-built homes are also gaining popularity with nearly 14% voting in favour of it.

Will this property be for end-use or investment?

59% home seekers will buy property for end-use, drop of 8% against H2 2019 survey findings.

It's interesting to note that now 41% want to purchase property for investment against 33% in previous survey.

End-users continue to rule the Indian residential market with 59% participants buying a property for self-use. Home ownership in crisis such as these becomes most pertinent for many people and gives the utmost satisfaction and security.

Simultaneously, Covid-19 is showing visible changes in people's mood.

Stock market volatility coupled with recent turmoil in financial market are key factors determining this change. In comparison to previous survey - H2 2019 - the share of participants looking to invest in property has risen by 8%.

Now, at least 41% want to purchase a property from investment perspective.

At what stage of property would you prefer?

Over 46% participants prefer to buy ready-to-move-in properties during Covid-19 times in order to eliminate all possible construction risks.

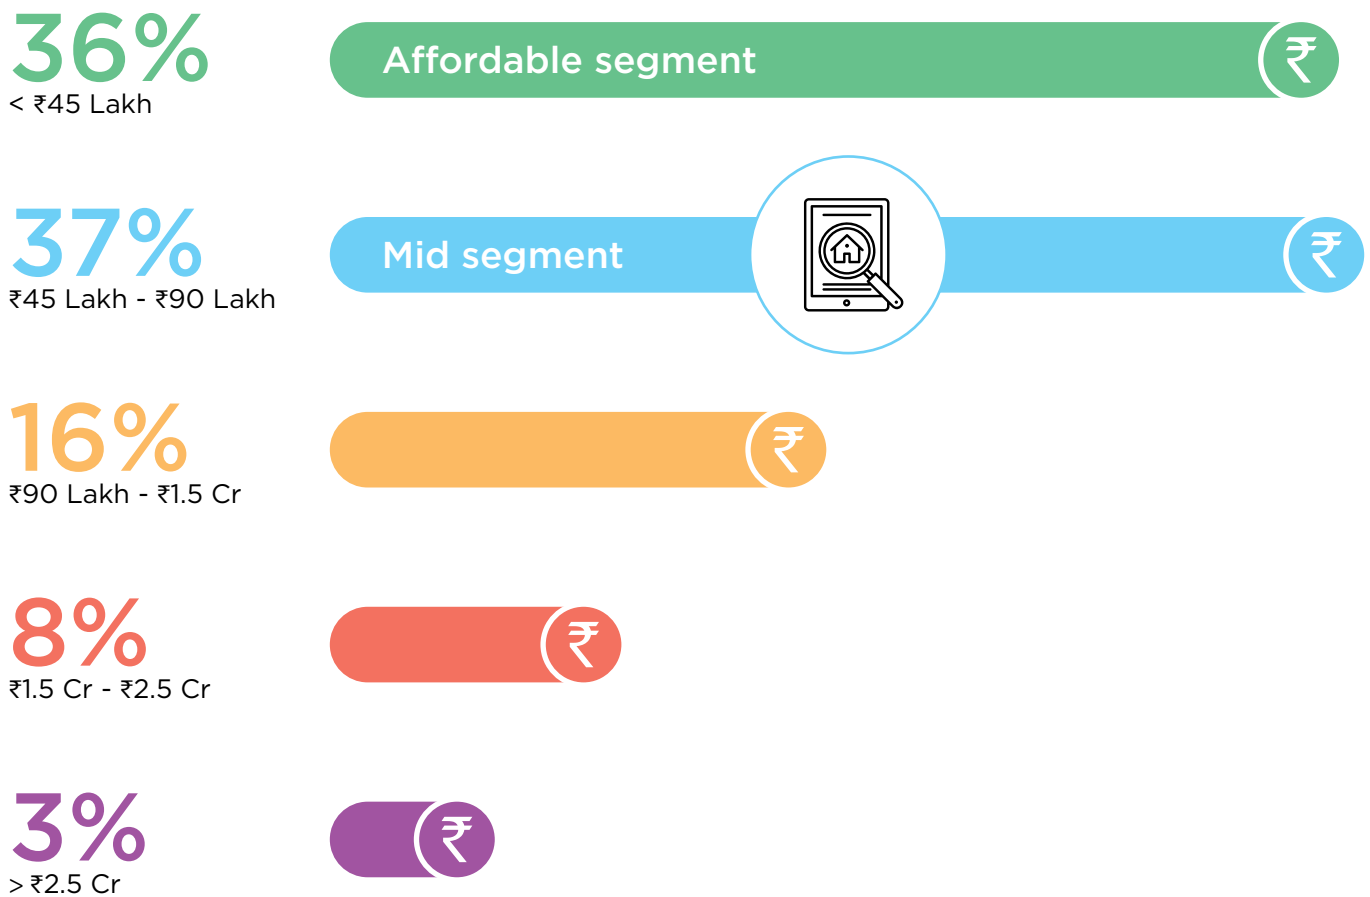

As anticipated, more than 46% participants prefer to buy ready homes so that they can avoid the associated construction risks due to Covid-19 outbreak. Interestingly, in the previous survey this number was just 35%.

Moreover, these prospective buyers have umpteen RTM options available today. ANAROCK research indicates that out of the total unsold stock of 6.44 lakh units in top 7 cities, nearly 12% or approx. 78,000 units are ready for possession.

Of this ready stock, 45% are available in MMR & Pune collectively.

What is the budget for your investment?

Mid segment (₹45 Lakh - ₹90 Lakh) is the most preferred budget category with 37% votes in its favour, followed closely by 36% favouring affordable homes (< ₹45 Lakh).

Affordable & Mid segment properties continue to remain the top choice of maximum property seekers. And, a crisis such as Covid-19 has further strengthened its base. Collectively, 73% home seekers prefer to buy properties priced within ₹90 Lakh budget. Naturally so, multiple government incentives for affordable housing has upped the game for this budget category in last few years.

However, it is also likely that many buyers would have actually reduced their overall budget for property purchase due to Covid-19 as they would not want to lock-in a large amount of money in such uncertain times. Instead, they would buy a functional house based on their current needs only.

Emerging Consumer Trends in Indian Real Estate during Covid-19 times

Home ownership is a new priority for millennials; ~ 55% property seekers aged between 25-35 years

Covid-19 has somewhat changed the way millennials are thinking now. Out of all participants that voted for real estate as best asset class for investment, at least 55% were in the age bracket of 25-35 years as against 42% in the previous survey. Interestingly, 68% of all these millennials are end-users. Undoubtedly, physical assets render highest sense of security especially during exigencies such as Covid-19 or when stock markets plummet to new lows & financial markets witness a turmoil.

Bengaluru, Hyderabad and MMR saw maximum bookings

At least 82% buyers that booked just before or during Covid-19 lockdown period claimed to have booked their homes in these three cities. Developers focussing extensively on digital sales tools are at an upper edge in crisis such as Covid-19 because despite lockdown they were able to close sales. Interestingly, ANAROCK Group also sold 240 homes worth ₹214.6 Cr during the lockdown 1.0 period.

Sense of security associated with physical assets & lower home loan rates key factors determining change

Out of all the participants who were previously in no mood to purchase a property but have now changed their decision during lockdown period, a whopping 92% cited two major reasons for this sudden change – sense of security that physical assets provide during such exigencies & lower home loan interest rates. Rates are at all-time low, ranging between 7.15% to 7.8%.

Covid-19 hasn't dented demand for affordable homes

It was widely anticipated that affordable segment would be the worst affected in 2020 due to Covid-19 as concerns over its target audience's limited income and fear of unemployment continue to rise. However, it doesn't seem so. Similar to previous survey, over 36% respondents prefer properties priced within sub ₹45 Lakh budget. It is also likely that in the current Covid-19 situation many buyers having higher budget previously would have actually reduced it. Many would not want to lock-in a large amount of money in such uncertain times. Instead, they would buy a more functional house based on their current needs only.

62% buyers prefer to pay premium & opt for developers with least execution risk

Majority respondents now largely favour risk-free investments. No wonder, demand for developers having least execution risk is at all-time high, even if the property is relatively higher priced. In the previous survey, just 52% preferred higher priced property from branded developers over smaller ones that sold properties at lower price but had high execution risk - thus recording 10% jump during Covid-19.

Over 34% investors now prefer ready-to-move-in (RTM) homes

In a significant trend seen during Covid-19, unlike before many respondents seeking property from investment perspective prefer ready-to-move-in homes. As many as 34% prefer ready homes over under construction ones probably because construction activity is completely halted across the country, inevitably leading to project delays by several months. In comparison, last survey trends indicated that just 12% investors preferred ready homes then.
